

The Eastern Idaho Environmental Education Association (EIEEA) invites you and your company to be part of the ever-growing success of the annual Idaho Falls Earth Day Celebration. The 2011 event will be held at Tautphaus Park on Saturday, April 23.

Idaho Falls Earth Day is sponsored by the EIEEA, a non-profit organization with the mission to facilitate environmental education throughout eastern Idaho. Support of EIEEA and this event demonstrates your commitment to environmental awareness in our community, and the belief that our natural environments and heritage are worthy of our time and protection.

Sign up today to be a supporter of Idaho Falls Earth Day! To be a financial sponsor, please contact one of our committee members at the numbers below, or go to the Eastern Idaho Environmental Education Association Web site at www.eieea.org and click on "donate." We also hope you'll consider lending your experience to our planning team. For a schedule of meetings, contact one of our committee members. We also encourage you to visit our Earth Day website (www.IFEarthDay.com) to learn other ways to be a part of this event.

Your support is key to making this community celebration such a success. By providing financial contributions and serving on the planning committee your name will be linked to an event attended by more than 5,000 people each year. The community impact of Idaho Falls Earth Day goes well beyond just the annual one-day event, thanks to generous sponsorship from organizations like yours.

If you have questions or would like additional information, visit our website at www.IFEarthDay.com, or contact Flint Hall at (208) 528-2612 or Gary Robinson at (208) 557-7348.

Sincerely,
