

The Eastern Idaho Environmental Education Association (EIEEA) invites you and your organization to be part of the ever-growing success of the annual Idaho Falls Earth Day Celebration. The 2009 event will be held in Tautphaus Park on Saturday, April 24.

Your support is key to making this community project such a success. By providing financial contributions and serving on the planning committee your name will be linked to an event attended by more than 5,000 people each year.

Sign up today to be a supporter of Idaho Falls Earth Day. See the insert included in this mailing titled "Sponsorship Opportunities," complete the required fields, and mail it back in the enclosed self-addressed envelope.

Idaho Falls Earth Day is sponsored by the EIEEA, a non-profit organization with the mission to facilitate environmental education throughout eastern Idaho. Support of EIEEA and this event demonstrates your commitment to environmental awareness in our community, and the belief that our natural environments and heritage are worthy of our time and protection.

The community impact of Idaho Falls Earth Day goes well beyond just the annual one-day event, thanks to generous sponsorship from organizations like yours.
